ABOUT THE CENTRE FOR CORPORATE LAW, GOVERNANCE AND FINANCIAL LAWS
(CCLGFL)

The Centre for Corporate Law, Governance and Financial Laws (CCLGFL) at National Law University Delhi (NLUD) was constituted in 2025 as the successor to the Centre for Business and Financial Laws and the Centre for Corporate Governance. Building on the work of these two centres, CCLGFL's mandate has been expanded to encompass developments in corporate law, corporate governance and financial laws. It aims to promote rigorous research, scholarship, and informed dialogue on legal, regulatory, and policy issues affecting businesses, financial markets, and corporate institutions. It seeks to strengthen the knowledge around the legal and institutional frameworks governing modern businesses and financial systems. It also aims to serve as a think tank to strengthen the robustness of the commercial legal landscape.

The Centre undertakes a range of academic and policy-oriented initiatives, including round-table conferences and discussions with policymakers, regulators, practitioners and other stakeholders. This facilitates meaningful exchange between academia and practice and contributes to contemporary legal and regulatory discourse. The Centre maintains the CCLGFL Blog and Journal as part of its core activities. These platforms invite contributions from students, academicians, and practitioners on contemporary issues in corporate law, corporate governance, securities and financial regulation, mergers and acquisitions, insolvency and restructuring, corporate finance, and related fields that advance the Centre's objectives.

ABOUT THE JOURNAL OF CORPORATE AND FINANCIAL LAWS (JCFL)

The Journal of Corporate and Financial Laws is the newly launched flagship commercial law journal of the Centre for Corporate Law, Governance and Financial Laws (CCLGFL) at NLU Delhi, the inaugural volume of which was published in August 2026. The Journal intends to serve as a source of cutting-edge contemporary discourse on issues relevant to the areas of corporate and commercial law by publishing high-quality articles authored by students, academicians, and practitioners. The focus of the publication is on ensuring contemporary relevance to legal and financial challenges, encouraging critical analysis, reform proposals, and comparative studies that contribute to the evolution of business law in India and globally.

THEMES FOR SUBMISSIONS

The journal publishes articles dealing with the following themes and areas of law, under the broad umbrella of corporate and commercial laws:

- Banking and Finance Law
- Company Law
- Competition Law
